Acknowledgments

It is a pleasure to thank here a number of people and institutional divisions who have provided valuable support for the Theory in (Ancient) Greek Archaeology Conference, for this volume, or for both. The planning of the conference was undertaken with the assistance of a committee of students from the University of Michigan's Interdepartmental Program in Classical Art and Archaeology. Among these, Elina Salminen was particularly helpful in undertaking significant administrative responsibility. I thank the conference speakers for traveling to Ann Arbor to present their work and participate in the discussion, particularly those who came from distant locations, including Greece, Germany, Austria, and Britain. The discussion was enhanced by the participation not only of our interdepartmental program's students and faculty but also of a number of colleagues from other subdisciplines represented in the Department of Classical Studies at Michigan, demonstrating the potential of theoretical approaches to reach across our subdisciplinary boundaries. The conference was made possible by funds from the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts, the Department of Classical Studies, and the Interdepartmental Program in Classical Archaeology at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor.

I am grateful to our commissioning editor at the University of Michigan Press, Ellen Bauerle, for the idea of producing a book based on some of the conference papers. Her support and faith in the project have kept it on track during the long process of bringing together the contributions. The press' anonymous referees also made helpful comments that improved the volume. Thanks are due to the contributors for their patience while the final outstanding pieces were rounded up and while referees' comments were solicited. I would also like to thank Mary Hashman for carefully shepherding the book through the production process, Kyle Dunn for producing the index and for his attention to details, and Lorene Sterner for generous last-minute help with figure 11.1.

I thank the following copyright holders for permission to reproduce images from their collections: Art Resource, New York; the Trustees of the Ashmolean

Museum, Oxford; the Athenian Agora Excavations; the Bauhaus-Archiv, Berlin; the Trustees of the British Museum, London; the Deutsches Archäologisches Institut, Rome; the Gordion Archives, University of Pennsylvania Museum of Archaeology and Anthropology; Sharon Herbert and the Tel Kedesh excavations.
